The Basics

Full Name: Séamus Gorman Dubhghall

Nicknames: He doesn't like nicknames, but Cathal calls him Shay anyways

Age: 25

Birthday: October 27 / 4 Orainsàm

Gender + Pronouns: cis man, he/him

Sexuality: Pansexual

Occupation: Porter at the Riviera Hotel

Personality

Description: Séamus is a generally depressed and apathetic person. The only time when he's outside of the house now is when he's going to work or church events, and his social skills really reflect that. He keeps his mouth shut most of the time, because when he opens his mouth whatever comes out is usually rude at the very least. Despite this, he is dedicated to his job and tries his best to do it well. He is incredibly fond of Cathal and spends all his free time with him in their room at the Shagart's house behind An Eaglais de Bean-Uasal Mòr in Anvilway. When speaking with his uncle and cousin, he is far more polite than he might be with other people around him (especially coworkers), and he seems to tolerate Aisling enough that she is no longer frightened of him.

Likes: Spending time alone, learning about other countries, traveling

Dislikes: The smell of gasoline, having to attend church, hot weather, denim clothing

Hobbies: He's not had time yet to find a hobby he enjoys. He thinks maybe one day that he'll try learning an instrument or taking up drawing, but he's not sure yet.

Talents: Somehow he managed to keep his job at the Riviera while addicted to heroin, which he counts as a talent, but it really isn't.

Magic

*Unless your character has both learned magic and natural magic, you do not need to fill out both parts of this section. Just delete the section you don't need!

Magic Type: Candauroe

Natural Magic:

↳ Powers:

- Power: Wind speed
 - Drawback: As wind moves faster, he begins to lose control of it, which can very quickly get dangerous.
 - Limits: Extensive heroin and cigarette use has caused breathing problems that are exacerbated by use of his powers.
- Power: Temperature manipulation
 - Drawback: No matter if he's making air hotter or colder, it causes his body to heat up, and has on rare occasions caused him to break out in hives. Can also affect the humidity depending on the location.
 - Limits: The human body can't get even 1 degree hotter without serious side effects.

↳ Strengths: The area of air which Séamus can control is pretty large proportionate to his body size.

↳ Weaknesses: He has breathing issues from smoking and being addicted to heroin, which get worse with even the slightest use of his powers.

↳ Traits: Whatever air he manipulates will begin to smell faintly of gasoline or smoke. He hates this smell, so Séamus avoids using his powers at all costs. He has on multiple occasions considered becoming aspeni.

Learned Magic: None yet, but he hopes to find someone who will teach him.

Siblings: Wallace Dubhghall (11-year-old brother, Canda)

Other family:

- Paternal grandparents: Caitriona (Granny, Canda) and Darragh Hunter (Pappy, Viri). They live in Ùir Uaine.
- Maternal grandparents: Fionna (Grandmother, Canda) and Domhnall Varney (Grandfather, Canda). They live in Féarcróna.
- Uinseann Varney (maternal uncle, Canda). His wife, Eibhlín, disappeared 10 years ago. They have one daughter, Saoirse, who lives with her father and young daughter Aisling in Symphonia. Séamus was sent to live with them when he was 19.

Description: TW FOR CHILD NEGLECT, ALCOHOL AND DRUG ABUSE, DEPRESSION, SUICIDE, DRUG OVERDOSES

When Séamus was born, his parents were both struggling artists living in Lusan Feadha, Ùir Uaine who could barely support themselves, much less a child. His childhood was extremely difficult, and from the age of 3 until he was 11, he spent any of his free time outside of school home alone. He was responsible for cooking his own food, dressing himself, and making sure he arrived on time to the school a mile away from their small shack on the edge of town. When Séamus was 9, the family moved to a much nicer house after Iain became the artist in residence for Duke Iomharr Bacann, the local noble and the uncle of the king of Ùir Uaine.

Though his parents had started to become extremely rich and successful, Séamus struggled to adapt, and by his 10th birthday he had already begun to use alcohol (swiped from his father's wine cabinet) to cope with his anxiety and self-loathing. This issue continued to get worse, with Séamus's mental health taking a significant downturn after the birth of his younger brother, Wallace, when he was 14. Feeling as if his parents were attempting to replace him with a younger, better son, Séamus dropped out of school and made several attempts to run away. It was during this time that he was introduced to opium and heroin, which he was addicted to on and off for many years. On his 18th birthday, he attempted to overdose on heroin while living with his parents—his mother found him half-dead in his bedroom, and was able to call a healer to save him. He was sent to a mental hospital, which he escaped from multiple times. At their wits end, Iain and Máire decided that a stricter environment might be what Séamus needed to get his life together, and they sent him to live with Máire's brother Uinseann, and his daughter Saoirse.

When he first arrived in Symphonia, Séamus was made to live in a very austere environment, as his uncle hoped that the removal of distractions might help him focus on his own recovery. Like he had at home, Séamus began to use drugs, which he hid in his trunk at the foot of his bed. When his uncle found the drugs, he was enrolled in a program for drug addicts, but Séamus refused to go, leaving his uncle's house to live in a house with some friends in the Cinders. For several months, no one in his family saw or heard from him until he suddenly returned to his uncle's house, stating that he intended to work hard and get clean. It's unclear exactly what caused this sudden change, but Séamus's family believes that a friend or person in his social circle overdosed. Séamus disputes this. From when he was 19 to just before his 23rd birthday, he was able to stay clean and keep a job at the Riviera Hotel. However, on the 4th anniversary of him getting sober, he backslid, and quickly became addicted to heroin once more. A couple months later, he once again left his uncle's house, and he lived in the Cinders for six months, though he continued to go to work at the Riviera.

When he returned to his uncle's home, once again looking to get sober, Séamus brought a friend, Cathal Ó Meadhra, a working seer also struggling with heroin addiction. Nervous about letting the two in the house, when Saoirse had just given birth to her daughter, Aisling, Uinseann sent them to live with his friend and the head of the local Theadairannach church, Sagart Cadhla Taggart. Both were able to get clean, but Cathal backslid shortly after. While working to help him get clean, Séamus backslid as well, and he once again disappeared for several months. A year ago, he was found half-dead in the Cinders after yet another overdose, at which point he was enrolled in another drug program, which he is still working through. Both he and Cathal are living with Sagart Cadhla, though they hope to get their own home soon.

Physical health conditions: Has some breathing issues from past drug addiction and current cigarette use

Mental health conditions: Depression, insomnia, also recovering from substance abuse disorder

Physical Attributes

Skin color + details: Very pale skin, almost to the point of making him look like a ghost

Eye color: Brown

Hair color + style: Shaggy black hair, grown out from what was probably a nicer haircut

Hair type: 1a

Scars: Track marks on his arms, SH scars on his thighs and arms

Tattoos/Piercings: An Ogham tattoo along his spine that reads “guidh do sinn do mhuirichinn gu an solast” (Pray to the Light for us thy children), a line from the main prayer of An Eaglais de An t-Urballtheairean. He also has a tramp stamp that looks like bat wings. Séamus has lots of ears piercings, nipple piercings, and snake bites.

Marks: Wings on his chest, swirls on his chest and arms, and pips on his face

Extra: He’s always been kinda skinny, but currently he’s pretty visibly underweight and bony. There’s a bump on his nose from multiple breakages that never healed properly.

Inventory

In addition the the things listed here, you can add any mundane item you want to your character's inventory

Other: He's got a Glaine-nathrach medal given to him by his uncle the second time Séamus went through a rehab program. He's not very devout, and doesn't attend church, but still wears that medal on his work uniform every day.

When Cathal and Séamus first met, Cathal gave him a metal bracelet which looks like a snake eating its own tail. Since he got it, Séamus has never taken it off.
